

Make a Difference by Creating Excellence in Nurse Anesthesia

Wake Forest Baptist Health currently has an exciting opportunity for an Associate Director. The Nurse Anesthesia Program has been very successful since 1942, producing high quality graduates and fostering faculty development. Our faculty and graduates have included six AANA presidents (in addition to the current president and vice-president) and numerous State Association Presidents, Program Directors, and District Leaders. We enjoy the support of our world-class medical center, including mock OR, standard patient assessment lab, anesthesiology grand rounds, and other resources. We have historically enjoyed a maximal accreditation status, outstanding graduate performance on the certification exam, and have been ranked among the top programs in the country (currently #7).

Our program faculty are committed to "Creating Excellence in Nurse Anesthesia". Following this vision, we produce graduates who are not only excellent clinicians, but who also embody passion for nurse anesthesia, stewardship of the profession, and professionalism resulting from a broad understanding of their role in the global health arena. Our program is focused on quality, not quantity of graduates.

The Associate Director for Didactic Education is responsible for course coordination and teaching, program evaluation, and accreditation. They will play a key role in development of a new, innovative curriculum as we move toward implementing our DNP degree. We are seeking a strong practitioner who is innovative and possesses a passion for education.

Requirements include 3 years as a CRNA, teaching, and a doctoral degree (or progress toward one). We offer a salary that is competitive with clinical positions, and a full complement of employee benefits.

We are seeking to assemble a team which works well together, complements each others' strengths, and most of all, has fun! If you are an ambitious worker who receives great enjoyment from the rewards of educating students, this is the dream position for you. This is an exciting opportunity to be an administrator of a progressive, successful program. If you want to have a positive influence on the future of your profession, please send your curriculum vitae and an introductory letter to
